Half-Day Technical Seminar Series: Innovative Systems and Products

Wednesday, November 22, 2023 – noon to 4:30 PM

Algonquin College, Woodroffe Campus, Napawon Indigenous Commons

A building enclosure is generally defined as the part of the building which separates the interior and exterior. However, the reality is much more complex, with the building enclosure exposed to a wide range of interior and exterior loads and stresses, while needing to provide multi-faceted functions of structural and elemental support, air, moisture and temperature control, and durable interior and exterior finish. In addition, there are seemingly unlimited options for designing, detailing and constructing the building enclosure, including through utilization of a huge variety of systems and products. As such, it is an ongoing challenge to design and construct reliable, long-lasting, durable, energy efficient and cost effective building enclosures.

To address these ongoing challenges, the construction industry continuously re-assesses existing approaches to building envelope performance, while manufacturers often develop innovative new systems and products to address. In order to promote innovation and to provide information on new systems and products, BECOR is happy to present a half-day series of presentations which highlight some recent innovations. BECOR's plan is to include six 30-minute presentations, highlighting recent systems and products for high performing building envelopes.

SPONSORSHIP OPPORTUNITIES

Typical attendance at a BECOR half-day event is about 60 to 70 industry professionals, and media coverage is normally provided by the Ontario Construction News. Therefore, this event will provide a great opportunity for corporate exposure to industry decision makers.
